Greenville, NC January 14, 2022 -- Paul Jenkins, Family Law Attorney and partner at The Graham, Nuckolls, Conner Law Firm, PLLC, has again been selected as a Legal Elite by Business North Carolina and a North Carolina Rising Star by Super Lawyers.

This is the eighth consecutive year Paul has been selected as a Legal Elite, and he is the only Family Law Attorney within Pitt County to receive this prestigious distinction in 2022. This is the second consecutive year Paul has been named a Rising Star by Super Lawyers.

These two honors demonstrate both Paul's excellence in the practice of law and, more importantly, his dedication to consistently providing the best service to his clients.

"Decisions about marriage, children and finances are tough. I am thankful to be given the opportunity to work with individuals who trust us during some of the most difficult times in their lives," said attorney, Paul Jenkins. "Especially, to do this alongside our great Family Law team here at The Graham, Nuckolls, Conner Law Firm"

Active members of the North Carolina State Bar are invited to nominate their peers for consideration to the Legal Elite Class list, which is curated annually by Business North Carolina. This year, fewer than 4% of active attorneys received this honor.

For an attorney to qualify for the Rising Stars list, they must be 40 years old or younger or in practice for 10 years or less. Lawyers in each state are invited to nominate an attorney deserving of this honor (lawyers cannot nominate themselves). Once nominated, selected candidates are taken through a rigorous research process to determine whether they meet the desired criteria, with less than 2.5% of attorneys within North Carolina being selected as Rising Stars.
